World Neighbors Avoids Pit

Dr. John L. Peters, Oklahoma City's ardent proselyte of self-help for developing countries, has been amply justified in his decision not to take financial assistance from the Central Intelligence Agency.

It would have been easy to rationalize such an acceptance in the light of the world's need, but in its beginning "World Neighbors" determined to be "neither more nor less than the honest expression of concerned individuals for their neighbors in the so-called 'underdeveloped areas.' "

The movement is enjoying unparalleled success in its particular area and the purity of its motives must be recognized as one of the main factors for this.

Acceptance of CIA assistance would have jeopardized the ready confidence being given this excellent program.
